The old woman got up and left the room. María and Paul were alone. Paul looked at María, but she did not look at him. She stood still and did not say anything. Paul went up to her and put his arm round her. María moved away from him. “ I'm sorry, Paul,' said María. 'My mother is right. I can't marry you. I don't want to be poor. I want money, and clothes, and a big car.’ 'But you love me, María,' said Paul. 'And I love you.' He did not understand her. He was angry. 'Yes, I love you, Paul,' said María. 'But love isn't enough.' She looked at him. Her face was sad. I'm getting married in two weeks,' she said. 'Goodbye, Paul. I'm sorry.' <input type="text"/>	The servant opened a door. Paul went inside. An old lady was sitting in a big chair. María stood behind her. The old woman was ugly. Her eyes were small and cold, and her mouth was thin and hard. Her old hands were covered with big rings. She looked proud and angry. Paul looked at the old woman, then at Maria. What an ugly old woman, he thought. Is she Maria's mother? 'So you want to marry my daughter?' the old woman said. Her voice was hard. Paul looked at her bravely. 'Yes,' he said. 'I love Maria and I want to marry her.' <input type="text"/>
